Arieh obtained his J.D. from Osgoode Hall law school, where he was a research assistant for Professor John McCamus. While in law school Arieh worked as a summer law student at one of Canada's largest litigation law firms.

Arieh is not just a lawyer but a Certified Public Accountant who is not afraid to shy away from the numbers. He understands the complex nature of estate, trust and guardianship litigation and approaches the nuances with a financial lens. Prior to becoming a lawyer, Arieh practiced as an accountant at KPMG and worked through Law School at Sherfam Inc. as a Controller providing in depth financial analysis for large privately held investment corporations.

Arieh has a voracious appetite for Estate, Trust and Guardianship law and always looks forward to helping his clients with their issues.
