Throughout her time at law school, Rebecca competed in numerous oral advocacy competitions where she consistently placed as a top participant. Additionally, during law school, Rebecca worked at a free legal clinic where she assisted local residents with their estate plans and power of attorney documents.

Rebecca believes that lawyers are uniquely positioned to help their clients. She understands that estate matters can be deeply personal, and aims to help her clients navigate the often complex legal landscape of estate litigation.

When she's not in the office, Rebecca can be found spending time with her family and working on her indoor garden.
